

Happy New Year 2013

Happy New Year! I am late, but just wanted to wish you a very happy 2013. Hope you all had a wonderful New Year celebration with family and friends. God has blessed me abundantly in 2012 so that I would like to share with you some of my personal blessings.

I wake up each morning with the chirping of wild birds. I feed them sugar water, suet, seeds and old oranges that the kind grocery man nearby saves for me.

The butcher saves me fat. I get Japanese Chickadee, Sparrows, Japanese Jay-like bird and Japanese-white eyes. God brings some of the birds I used to feed in Ca. to keep me company. I wake up with much joy.

After 5 years, I have 22 beautiful lemons growing in my backyard to share. Thank you Jesus!

Holy Land trip in Feb. was the surprise and blessing of my life I ever dreamt of. Through 2 couples in Tokyo, Jesus gifted me with a trip to Israel, all expenses paid. The Bible I read each day has come alive. The background you see is the Empty Tomb of Jesus. Jesus is a Living God. He resurrected and is alive!

It was wonderful to meet some of my family in Ca. at my sister's while I was on vacation and on medical leave. The medical report wasn't very good. I need to return in May to get cataract surgery on one eye, and finish up with the molar implant. This is the year I get invited to go to the JEMS Summer Conference for a week. I am looking forward to seeing you.
